Anton DevCo, a leading California multifamily developer, has begun construction of Anton NoMa, a 135 mixed-use development located at 1910 N. Main Street, Walnut Creek. A groundbreaking event was held Thursday, November 7.

Catered lunch was provided by George Almeida who successfully operated the Fuddruckers restaurant on the project site for more than 20 years. Attendees included the Mayor of Walnut Creek, Cindy Silva, who shared a few words during the ceremony, Walnut Creek City Manager Dan Buckshi, City staff and other Anton partners for the project.

Anton NoMa is a new mixed-use development in the desirable neighborhood of Walnut Creek, a short commute east of San Francisco and two blocks from the Walnut Creek BART station. The new development will consist of 135 apartment units with approximately 9,000 square feet of retail. 11 of the units will be rent restricted for low income housing. "Building new housing in California is our top priority. The City of Walnut Creek has been a great partner to make this happen," says Trisha Malone, the Chief Investment Officer at Anton DevCo.

NoMa residents will have unprecedented access to dining, entertainment, and employment opportunities. Anton NoMa will consist of two levels of subterranean parking with ground floor of retail with a mix of studio, one-bedroom, and two-bedroom units above. The common area spaces feature a community room with kitchen, fitness center, as well as a courtyard with pool, spa, BBQ and firepit. Residents will be able to relax and enjoy the coveted East Bay climate on the outdoor rooftop lounge with views of Mount Diablo.
