6 KEY TIPS FOR SAVING ON FLIGHTS IN 2020

#1 Set up deal alerts

The better the deal, the shorter it will be available for you to book. Our data suggests that prices can fluctuate up to 135 times per day. We recommend using sites like Google Flights to set up price alerts on specific routes or sign up for fare alert services like Dollar Flight Club.

#2 Book in advance

Based on our data, the best window to book cheap flights occur 3 weeks to 4 months in advance. Average fare prices tend to rise as the departure date gets closer. Booking on the weekend can be up to 60% cheaper in comparison to Thursdays or Fridays (the most expensive days to book flights).

#3 Fly during the week

If you have flexibility to fly on a Wednesday, you can save up to 40%. When booking, take advantage of fare calendars to see which days are the cheapest, both for departing and returning flights. Weekdays are the best times to enjoy the shortest security lines and the least amount of delays/cancellations.

#4 Avoid budget airlines

Budget airlines like Norwegian Air or Frontier will advertise insanely cheap fares this coming year due to low fuel prices. However, they'll work to increase revenue by increasing fees to select your seats, purchase food, & pay for baggage - it's hardly a deal anymore. We recommend holding out for deals on those 5-star airlines.

#5 Alternate airports

One way to save money is to choose a different airport to fly out of or into. Major airports typically offer a lot more competition, which means that airlines are looking to get business by offering lower prices. This is best for saving money, even if it may not always seem more convenient in terms of potential wait times or even travel times.

#6 Act really fast

Our data suggests that prices can fluctuate up to 135 times per day. If you see a deal to a destination you've been dreaming about, we recommend booking the flight ASAP. If you book a flight directly with an airline, they are required to give you 24 hours to cancel without penalty. You'll get a 100% refund if you decide to cancel and you won't miss out on the deal if you decide to keep the flight.
