CLIENT:	Arkansas Surgical Hospital	DATE:	January 31, 2022
TITLE:	New Chief Nursing Officer, Director of Patient Care Services Named at Arkansas Surgical Hospital	Version:	I

NORTH LITTLE ROCK—Arkansas Surgical Hospital has named Sarah Loftin as its new Chief Nursing Officer and Emily Cobb as its new Director of Patient Care Services.

Sarah Loftin, CMSRN Named Arkansas Surgical Hospital CNO

In her new role as Chief Nursing Officer, Loftin will provide clinical and administrative leadership for planning, organizing, directing, monitoring and evaluating safe, high-quality patient care.

Loftin joined Arkansas Surgical Hospital in 2014 as a staff nurse in the Pre-Operative Department, becoming its Clinical Coordinator in 2016. Loftin was promoted to Director of Quality Services and Risk Management in 2017 and continued in that role until recently accepting the CNO position.

Loftin, a certified medical surgical nurse, received her nursing degree from Baptist Health Schools. She was a 2018 recipient of the Arkansas Center for Nursing's Top 40 Nurse Leaders Under 40.

Emily Cobb, RN Named Arkansas Surgical Hospital DPCS

As Director of Patient Care Services, Cobb will manage, coordinate, and evaluate nursing services within several departments, including Pain Management, the Post-Anesthesia Care Unit (PACU), the Patient Care Unit, and the Emergency Department.

Cobb has served in a variety of roles in her eight years at Arkansas Surgical Hospital. Most recently, she led the Interventional Pain Department and the PACU and was instrumental in the growth of each.

Before joining Arkansas Surgical Hospital, Cobb attended nursing school at UAMS and worked in its Intensive Care Unit. She started in Arkansas Surgical Hospital's PACU and became Coordinator in 2016.
