Taylor Warnick, paid close attention to the ingredients in the food his family was eating. Naturally he started looking at what else they were putting on and inside their bodies. After the birth of their second child, Taylor and his wife began using personal lubricants. They searched for the best personal lubricant, but found a lot of companies claiming “natural” and “organic” yet nothing was certified organic, and many terrible ingredients were being used in most products they found. Taylor created Coconu, with the goal to create a USDA certified organic personal lubricant. He developed two amazing products and they have both received extremely positive feedback from thousands of happy customers.

ORGANIC MATTERS

MEET TAYLOR AND SARAH

Taylor Warnick founded Coconu to bring the same standard of healthy organic ingredients they choose for his family’s diet to body and beauty products. His sister, Sarah Belzer, joined the team in 2017 to help grow the company and introduce new organic face and body products. Sarah is committed to being healthy and happy, starting with herself, her husband, and their three sons.

VISION OF HEALTH AND SUSTAINABILITY

Coconu is committed to operating with integrity and transparency. They love plants and all things living and maximize their usage in their products. But they also know a sustainable product isn’t only what’s inside or how it’s packaged, this includes how it’s manufactured, employee work environments, waste management, energy usage and much more. They use re-usable packaging and higher post-consumer recycled materials.

GIVING BACK

Coconu was founded to help people lead healthier, happier lives by offering 100% safe and organic health and beauty products. This dedication to health and happiness includes helping people increase their capacity for intimacy, connection and confidence, and it also includes partnering with causes that are aligned with this mission.
