

Turning Concern About Community Banking's Future into Concrete Action

The Independent Bankers Association of Texas and FedFIS have launched a new professional social media site exclusively for community bankers in an attempt to foster collaboration and allow them to easily compare their tech services and experiences. Christopher Williston, the head of IBAT, discusses how the site started, where it's going and how it can help small institutions.

Click to Listen