

Exploring the past, present, & future of male contraception

Contact:
Kevin Shane
Marketing & Communications Director
kevin@malecontraceptive.org
www.malecontraceptive.org

Series Host Biographies

Logan Nickels, PhD

Logan Nickels is a host and the executive producer of Intended. With a background in bench science, education, and radio, he deconstructs complex topics into an understandable format for listeners and the public.

At MCI he manages granting operations and research investments, focusing on a diverse portfolio intended to drive male contraception to market.

Kevin Shane

Kevin Shane is one of the hosts and producers of Intended. His background in marketing, communications, and human-centered design translates to an empathic approach to storytelling, and a keen ability to make information personable and approachable.

He is MCI's Marketing & Communications Director, leading the organization's advocacy and outreach efforts.

Heather Vahdat, MPH

Heather Vahdat is a host of Intended, and Executive Director of Male Contraceptive Initiative. With over a decade of experience in contraceptive development, she brings a nuanced viewpoint on how contraception has shaped public health outcomes and how a male contraceptive could do the same.

At MCI she develops innovative programs to impact male contraceptive research, development, and advocacy alike.

