EdTechTeam Announces ‘AudioPlayer for Slides’ Chrome Extension

Until now, there has not been a convenient way to add music to enhance your presentations. Today, we change that.

IRVINE, CA—EdTechTeam, a global network of educational technologists, is excited to announce its newest Chrome extension, AudioPlayer for Slides. AudioPlayer for Slides seamlessly adds music to presentations, making it easy to take lectures and presentations to the next level.

Teachers around the world have clamored for the ability to play audio files in Google Slides, but there were no convenient ways to add music. EdTechTeam’s Director of Partnerships, Chris Craft, Ph.D., NBCT, first tried to address this by creating a Google Slides Add-On, which today, is the third most installed Add-On, with over 85,000 users. However, there were significant limitations with Google Slides’ API functionality, so he created a better solution with the AudioPlayer for Slides Chrome extension.

“I am thrilled to release to you the newest EdTechTeam Chrome extension, AudioPlayer for Slides!” says Craft. “The brand new AudioPlayer for Slides has been re-written from the ground up with ease and speed-of-use as its primary goals.”

The AudioPlayer for Slides extension is a fast and easy-to-use solution, giving educators the power to simply add the extension to their Chrome browsers today and start combining music with their Google Slide presentations. It’s EdTechTeam’s mission to empower educators by helping them create new and engaging lesson plans using the power of technology. AudioPlayer for Slides is yet another example of how these creative solutions lend for dynamic and exciting learning.
